American Spirit Discovers NewSolutions as Key for Personal Touch Service

Maurice Dawkins, President /CEO, American Spirit Federal Credit Union, knows growth for their credit union will result by providing personal touch service to their loyal members. But recurring challenges with existing core processing software limitations are proving counter productive to create the necessary level of service for growth. So Dawkins went to work comparing core processors and discovered NewSolutions by Share One and is excited about their pending conversion. “We wanted user friendly technology that provides easy interfacing. There was a huge price difference between NewSolutions and the big, popular software processing packages on the market and NewSolutions offers additional, superior standard features. It didn’t take a rocket scientist to realize this system is much better and the value is obvious,” Dawkins said.

Through comprehensive research and a clear understanding of what he wanted a core system to provide, Dawkins came to the conclusion that NewSolutions would be the perfect processing system for them. “Share One also provides communication and support that you cannot put a price on, you can’t beat it”, said Dawkins. “The fact that Share One is a CUSO and understands what a typical day is like in the credit union, sets them apart,” said Dawkins.

“Share One works to discover the unique goals of each credit union we partner with and then we work to provide the tools and service necessary for those credit unions to accomplish their goals. NewSolutions provides a user friendly system that delivers a robust infrastructure the makes the process easy,” said Daryl Tanner, President/CEO, Share One.
